MARSHALL OYAMA

PREPARES TO STRIKE AGAIN.

Admiral Nebogatoff's Surrender Has Aroused Bitter Hostility Toward Him in Russia.

St. Petersburg, June 3.—The account of the surrender of his squadron by Admiral Nebogatoff has aroused intense indignation and it is freely said he will be court-martialed and shot if he returns on parole. The czar usually so ready with a rescript has made no move and it would seem as though the bureaucracy had definitely decided to throw the onus of peace or war on the national assembly, which is to be summoned immediately, with the hope of discrediting the latter by an ignominious peace.

News from the front is far from reassuring, for it all points to the development of a new attack by Marshall Oyama and it is well known here that Linovich is not yet in a position to offer serious resistance and must fall back, leaving Harbin to the enemy and Vladivostok open to siege. The whole nation desires nothing but peace.

A PRISONER'S STORY OF THE BATTLE.

London, June 3.—The Daily Mail's Tokyo correspondent says that the captain of the Russian cruiser, Admiral Nakimoff, who is now a prisoner, relates the following story of the battle between the Japanese and Russian fleets.

"We first saw the Japanese at 6 o'clock on the morning of May 27, when suddenly and unexpectedly we encountered the enemy's fleet as we were moving to the east of Tsushima. They turned towards us and opened fire. Only ninety minutes after the fighting began a shock was felt under the Admiral Nakimoff and she began to sink with great rapidity. My belief is that she either struck a mine or a torpedo."

"The crew numbered 900 men, a majority of whom went down with the ship, as there was no time to get the men on deck. A number of sailors saved by life boats, swam to a small launch and we went aboard a fishing boat. All of the men were sent to the shipwreck."

"In the engagement fought off Liancourt rocks, the Russian battleships were surrounded by Japanese ships, which circled about them, pouring in a heavy fire and they almost immediately fell into confusion. Seeing their plight, Vice Admiral Togo signalled a demand to know whether the Russians were ready to surrender."

"Our ships then complied with the demand."

Other accounts of the battle describe the roar of the cannonade as so terrible that houses were shaken at Yamaguchi, 23 miles distant, and the people supposed it was an earthquake. The Japanese fleet suffered little. The battleship Asahi was offened but, and suffered the heaviest loss, but did not quit her firing line.

Admiral Kamekura was sent southward to begin the battle, with a small squadron. He, however, allowed the Russians to pass him. Then Rear Admiral Uriu broke in upon them from the island and passed across the head of the third line, sinking them again and again."

The correspondent says, proved the most effective. The armored cruiser Vladimir Monomach, loaded the white flag during the battle, and with a hundred or her crew, foundered."

The repair ship Kamehatka was badly hit early in the battle. Her steering gear was so disabled that she could only circle round and round. While in this condition, a shell hit her engines, completely disabling her. Forty-six of her crew took to the boats, but these were barely lowered when the Kamehatka lurched, her bows rose in the air and she sank with a tremendous roar. Her captain was killed and three officers drowned and two wounded while the fate of the others is unknown.

One of the Kamehatka officers while in a boat saw the Japanese close around three Russian battleships which were sinking, and torpedoes seemed to be exploding all around them.

An interesting story, in many ways the best that these clever collaborators have produced. Its romantic and sympathetic treatment of a plot of unusual originality; the quickly shifting scene, from the active mystery of tropical India to the haunting spirit of the English downs; and the vivid personality of the characters, especially of its charming heroine, leave an impression that one will not soon forget. The illustrations are of special beauty.

A Father of Confederation.

[Winipeg Free Press]

William McDougall, whose death occurred at Ottawa on Sunday, was born at York, in 1822. He studied law in Toronto at the office of James Harvey Price, and was admitted as an attorney and solicitor in 1847. Though he practiced his profession, his passion for politics led him to journalism, which readily welcomed in him a writer of remarkable power. He was at first a contributor to the columns of the Examiner and then published an agricultural paper on his own account, called the "Canada Farmer." During the year 1850 he was largely instrumental in founding the North American newspaper in Toronto, of which he assumed the editorship, and which he conducted with much ability and vigor. This paper had been established as the exponent of the principles of the Chartist, a body of discontented Ontario Reformers. Their platform was a radical one, including universal suffrage, election to all government offices, biennial parliaments, free trade, direct taxation, and many reforms in the judiciary. Mr. McDougall's office became the headquarters of the new party, which was soon to make its influence felt in the politics of Canada.

HIS PART IN PRE-CONFEDERATION POLITICS.

Mr. McDougall's readiness as a fighter early designated him to the party leaders as a man to contest hostile constituencies. But at last his perseverance was rewarded by election in North Oxford. He entered parliament as a supporter of the Brown-union alliance in May, 1858, and immediately took his seat. It was not long before he made himself prominent by his advanced views and earnestness. In 1861 he moved a resolution censuring the government on the alleged ground that they had annexed the Prince of Wales to align the Orangemen and Presbyterians, during his visit to Canada, a motion which only commanded fourteen votes. During the session of 1862 he was the most strenuous advocate of representation by population, not soon after he consented to become commissioner of crown lands in the Hamilton-Macdonald-Sidde administration, which side-lined the issue of representation. In these troublous times political alliances were readily made and broken, in 1863 when George Brown and John A. Macdonald united to form a government for the purpose of bringing about confederation Mr. McDougall accepted the portfolio of provincial secretary in the new administration.

ONE OF THE FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION.

It has been well said that to no one does the term "Father of Confederation" more rightly apply than to him. He attended the union conference at Charlottetown in 1864, and that held at Quebec in the same year. In 1866-67 he was also present at the annual conference that sat in London when the terms of the federation compact were finally settled. Sir John A. Macdonald (who had been knighted upon the union of the provinces, taking effect) was entrusted with the formation of the first Dominion government and he appointed Mr. McDougall minister of public works. At the same time Mr. McDougall was created a Companion of the Order of the Bath in acknowledgment of his services in promoting confederation. About half the members of the first Dominion government were, at least nominally, Liberals; and the government was known as a coalition. This was displeasing to Mr. George Brown who thought that the coalition between the parties, having brought about confederation, had served its purpose; he was in favor of the Liberals forming a party in opposition to Sir John Macdonald. The acceptance of office by two leading Ontario Liberals, Mr. McDougall and Mr. W. P.

Howland, was therefore very displeasing to Mr. Brown, and he denounced them as being guilty of treason. In June, 1867, a general convention of the Reform party met at Toronto, and Mr. McDougall was invited to be present. He responded and defended his action in a powerful address; but Mr. Brown's influence was paramount, and the Liberal members of the government were readily read out of the party. They accepted the situation and the Macdonald ministry ceased to be regarded as a coalition; it took its position as a Conservative government under the undisputed leadership of Sir John A. Macdonald. HIS EARLY INTEREST IN THE WEST.

For two years Mr. McDougall continued to administer the affairs of the great spending department of the government; but in 1869 he suffered political shipwreck as the result of a series of tragic events. It was the irony of fate that that which he had planned to confirm his reputation should have been his undoing. Mr. McDougall had been among the pioneer advocates of the acquisition of the great west by Canada and now his ambitions were to find a grave in this new country.

It was in 1856 that the public mind first became thoroughly aroused on the subject of the Hudson's Bay Company's possessions in the Northwest. It was then that Canadians for the first time awoke to the importance of bringing about a union with those little known territories. Mr. McDougall was among the leaders in this movement. The Globe had absorbed the North American, and Mr. McDougall, now writing in its columns, wielded increased influence. With his trenchant pen he took up the question of the Northwest with much enthusiasm. The movement steadily gained in strength, and finally resulted in the absorption of the Northwest by the Dominion.

SECURING THE TRANSFER FROM THE H. B. COMPANY.

During the negotiations for confederation, the advocates of territorial extension to the westward found it necessary to practice reticence and discretion. As soon, however, as the union was accomplished the Hon. William McDougall pressed the question upon the cabinet and upon parliament, and on December 1, 1867, introduced resolutions declaring that it would promote the prosperity of the Dominion people and conduce to the advantage of the empire if the Dominion of Canada were extended westward to the shores of the Pacific ocean, and authorizing the government to negotiate with the imperial authorities for the union of Rupert's land and the Northwest Territory with the Dominion, and for the recognition of the authority of the Canadian parliament to legislate for their future welfare and good government. In 1868 by virtue of these resolutions, Garfield and McDougall proceeded to London to arrange with the home government the terms of the settlement with the Hudson's Bay Company, and the basis of transfer to Canada. This mission was carried to a successful issue. In 1869 the Canadian government ratified the agreement, and passed an act providing for a system of territorial government in Manitoba.

THE FIRST LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF THE WEST.

The appointment of Lieutenant-governor of the new territory naturally came to Mr. McDougall, and on September 28, 1869, he left Ottawa for Fort Garry.

The main facts about what followed are well known, although there is still much controversy as to who blundered. When the lieutenant-governor reached Pembina on his way to Fort Garry he was met by a delegation of half-breeds, well instructed in his movements and warmly hostile to his mission. They opposed his advance in the name of the provisional council and the menace was so effectual that after persistent and unsuccessful attempts to communicate with the governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, he was forced to withdraw into United States territory.

The situation was aggravated by the unsatisfactory relations which seem to have existed between Mr. McDougall and Joseph Howe, who as secretary of state, had come out to the new territory to arrange with the Hudson's Bay officials for its transfer to the Dominion. The charge was freely made and widely believed that Howe fed the disaffection among the half-breeds and quietly and secretly encouraged the organization of the movement to resist Mr. McDougall's entrance into the territory.

IN the Manicouaga district in Cuba the best tobacco is usually grown on the hills. A clearing is made on some sunny hillside as a seed plot to secure a natural hot bed for seedlings. The expert tobacco growers select only the lusty, healthy plants for transplanting and these are carefully tended during their 40 days' growth. Invariably secure leaves from a plant that has not been allowed to grow stringy from ripening leaves. Get the choicest leaf from the well-matured plant—for I know from that kind of leaf I make a cigar that will give a delightful smoke with the fugitive odor of roses in it—that is the characteristic odor of my Pharoah Cigar.

LETTER FROM SIR JOHN.

But Mr. McDougall had not to deal with Howe alone. Sir John A. Macdonald took an active interest in his progress, and if the would-be lieutenant-governor had been less impatient he would have received plenty of good advice from his leader. On November 26, 1889, Sir John Macdonald wrote Mr. McDougall: "The point which you must never forget is that you are now approaching a foreign country under the government of the Hudson's Bay Company. You are going there under the assumption that the company's authorities, assent to your entering upon their territory, and will protect you when there. You cannot force your way in."

"It occurs to me that you should ascertain, from Governor McTavish, the two leading half-breeds in the territory, and inform them at once that you will take them into your council. This man Riel, who appears to be the moving spirit, is a clever fellow, and you should endeavor to retain him as an officer in your future police. If you do this promptly, it will be a most convincing proof that you are not going to leave the half-breeds out of the law."

"Our Tower Canadian colleagues are intensely disgusted at the action of the French priests, as described by you. I hope you will allow no impatience at their factious and irrational conduct to induce you to hold out any but conciliatory language to them. After you are fairly in the saddle, if they attempt to obstruct your administration, you act summarily with them."

"The course taken by Stoughton Dennis in pressing for strong measures to be taken against parties interfering with his surveys, was exceedingly injudicious."

These were the counsels of a shrewd and crafty statesman, but hardly consistent with the feelings of those who surrounded Mr. McDougall and who were anxious to meet force by force. Hence the publication of a proclamation which was clearly a mistake. Sir John A. Macdonald had foreseen it and warned against it.

On November 23 the premier had written Mr. McDougall:

"I hope no consideration will induce you to leave your post—that is, to return to Canada just now. Such a course would cover yourself and your party with ridicule, which would extend to the whole Dominion."

And again, on the 27th of the same month:

"A proclamation, such as you suggest, calling upon the people, in your capacity as lieutenant-governor, to unite to support the law, and calling upon the insurgents to disperse, would be very well if it were sure to be obeyed. If, however, you were disobeyed, your weakness and inability to enforce the authority of the Dominion would be painfully exhibited."

"An assumption of the government by you of course, puts an end to that of the Hudson's Bay Company's authorities, and Governor McTavish and his council, would be deprived even of the semblance of legal right to interfere. There would then be, if you were not admitted into the country, no legal government existing, and anarchy must follow. In such a case, no matter how the anarchy is produced, it is quite open by the law of nations for the inhabitants to form a government of necessity for the protection of life and property, and such a government has certain rights by the law of nations. . . . The temptation to an acknowledgement of such a government by the United States would be very great, and might not be lightly risked."

But all this was too late. The mistakes had been made, and in anger Sir John A. Macdonald wrote to a friend that McDougall had made a miserable blunder in the Northwest.

Mr. McDougall returned to Ottawa a baffled and humiliated man. It is perhaps true, as was then asserted, that the mass of the Liberal party secretly rejoiced over his personal discomfiture. It was felt that he had deserted George Brown at a critical juncture in the fortunes of the Liberal party and had carried many waverers over to Sir John Macdonald. On the other hand there was also a general suspicion that the Conservative leader had sent him out to the western governorship in order to get rid of an unworkable colleague.

Mr. Macdonald found himself loaded with censure, and held to the chief responsibility for the miscarriage of the plans of the government and for the outbreak of violence at Red River. He was strongly attacked in press and pamphlet, and he struck back with vigor and passion, and sometimes with an approach of ferocity. The most bitter and destructive of these attacks were laid at the door of Howe and upon that assumption Mr. Macdonald addressed to Howe a series of open letters, which for heat, pungency and invective, are not excelled in the political literature of Canada.

HIS ATTACK ON HOWE

In one of these he declared that he was not disclosing any secret of the council room when he affirmed that in September, 1888, except Mr. Tilley and himself, every member of the government was either indifferent or hostile to the acquisition to the North West. They were not ready to act until it was discovered that the ministerial crisis respecting the route of the Intercolonial railway could be avoided only by an immediate agreement and immediate action to secure the transfer of the territories to Canada. He said that the opposing faction in the cabinet, led by Sir George Cartier and Peter Mitchell, forced Sir John Macdonald, as the price of their consent to the acquisition of the western country to agree to select (the long route for the Intercolonial in order to strengthen their hand in certain Quebec and New Brunswick constituencies. He bitterly assailed the Catholic clergy, and contended that the bill for the creation of the province of Manitoba was at first designed to establish French and foreign ascendancy in Manitoba, by excluding the English settlement of Portage la Prairie. Then, still addressing Howe, he said: "The policy of the Canadian government, as proved by the terms of Sir John Macdonald's bill of 1869 for the temporary government of the Territories by the sending of a considerable number of officials from Canada, and instructing me to select others from the officials of the Hudson's Bay company, was well adapted to excite the indignation and the moral, if not the physical, resistance of the people of Red River, while your seditious talk and bibulous fraternization with the leaders of the conspiracy at Fort Garry, and your offensive discourtesy to, and open denunciation of, the loyal portion of the inhabitants were the most effective complement of the original design that could have been devised. The one provoked rebellion, the other promised it success." He added: "From the day on which you received notice at Ottawa of an armed resistance to my entrance into the territory as the representative of the Canadian government—information which did not surprise you—until my return to Canada, the policy of the Government was consistent, and Sir Francis Hincks tells us harmoniously, in one direction, namely, to abandon the country."

The "Canada first" group of politicians appeared disposed to take up Mr. McDougall's case, but the two large parties received his indictment with coldness.

HIS LATER POLITICAL CAREER

Up to this time Mr. McDougall, on account of his exceptional gifts as a writer and platform speaker, ranked as the peer of the greatest Canadian public men. Thereafter he did nothing commensurate with his talents, and there is a touch of pathos in his failure to make new political alliances and on his inability or disinclination to make himself an enduring force in the country. He sat in the Commons until 1874, Sir John A. Macdonald appointed him in 1871, commissioner for Ontario for the settlement of the Northwest boundary of the province and in 1873 he was sent to England by the Canadian government as a special commissioner to confer with the imperial authorities on the subject of the Canadian fisheries. He remained there for some months and proceeded afterwards to the continent for the purpose of making arrangements in Scandinavia and the Baltic provinces on behalf of immigration.

In 1875 he was elected to the Ontario legislature for Halton. But in 1878 he re-entered the federal arena and again had a seat in the House of Commons until 1882. He professed political independence, but during the protectionist campaign he was in practical alliance with the Conservative party, and was a most destructive critic of the Mackenzie administration. He was not included in the Conservative government formed in 1878 and thereforward he moved toward greater freedom of utterance and wider divergence from the policy of Sir John Macdonald. So far had this detachment proceeded by the end of the parliament that in the general election of 1882 he stood as an independent Liberal candidate for Algoma. He was defeated in this contest as well as in 1887 when he stood in Grenville with the Liberal support. In 1881 he declined appointment to a judgeship and also to a lieutenant-governorship at the hands of Sir John A. Macdonald. In 1875 he resumed his law practice in partnership with his son, who afterwards became judge of York, and was concerned in several important cases, notably the Campbell divorce case and the Mercer will case.

Mr. McDougall was the writer of a large number of political pamphlets which will continue to bear testimony to the vigor of his pen for a long time, while the important part he played at the time of the making of confederation assures him a place in Canadian history.

THE NEWS OF THE DAY

IN CONDENSED DISPATCHES

Brief items from many sources tell the story of the day's events.

CURRICULUM CHANGED.

Winnipeg, June 2.—The University council yesterday unanimously decided that the present system was much too technical, and that students were graduating from college with too adequate knowledge of the use of their mother tongue. The council raised the standard required on subjects in the third and fourth years in arts for all courses from 25 to 34 per cent.

The question of raising the total percentage from 40 to 50 per cent. was placed in the hands of a special committee.

OLIVER GOES AFTER BENNETT.

Ottawa, June 2.—Hon. F. Oliver has left for Woodstock to be present at a meeting to be addressed there by R. S. Bennett, of Calgary. Mr. Bennett has been in North Oxford several days and has been there representing the people of the North-West as on the eve of a revolution over the autonomy bill.

YESTERDAY'S GAMES.

Winnipeg, June 2.—Yesterday's ball scores: Winnipeg 11, Duluth 8; Grand Forks 9, Crookston 1; Fargo 14, St. Cloud-Bainard 2.

FRENCHMEN CHEERED IN BERLIN.

Berlin, June 2.—The French delegates to the wedding of the Crown Prince Frederick William, arrived here today, and were cheered by a considerable crowd. This was the first time in a generation that Frenchmen have been cheered in the streets of Berlin.

THOUGHTFUL USHERS.

Pittsburgh, June 2.—Late this afternoon a fire broke out in the Avenue Theatre, which has been closed for several weeks. Adjoining the Avenue theatre is the Grand Opera house, where a matinee was in progress. There was no excitement in the Grand Opera house. The house was about half filled and the ushers quietly went through the audience tapping people on the shoulders telling them to quietly leave. All got out safely. At 4:20 p.m. the Avenue Theatre and the Grand Opera House were both in flames.

THE SULTAN AROUSES TROUBLE.

Paris, June 2.—The Sultan of Morocco has declined the French proposals for the reform of Morocco unless approved by the International Conference. This is widely commented upon as amounting to a check, if not to the failure of the French mission sent to Fez, as well as a check to the entire French policy in Morocco. Only the absorbing attention given to King Alfonso prevents a renewal of the storm of protest against Germany. The International Conference would be considered to be the result of the influence of Count Von Lottleben-Schuld, head of the German mission to Fez. French indignation against Germany is expected to take concrete form.

YOUNG CORBETT DEFEATED.

San Francisco, June 2.—In a fierce twenty round fight here last night Young Corbett went down to defeat before Eddie Hannon, of this city. The heat went the limit and both men were on their feet at the end, but Young Corbett was badly punished. This was the third meeting of the two, the first time being a draw, and the second time Corbett winning in sixteen rounds, by a knock out.

THE PEMBINA COUNTRY.

Pembina, May 30.—Relative to the announcement in a late issue of your valuable paper of a picnic and social gathering to be held at Ross' Grade, Pembina river, July 1. It was erroneously stated, owing to a misunderstanding, that dancing and horse racing would furnish part of the entertainment to be provided. That is incorrect, as speaking and singing for the children and selling on show-ware and other forms of harmless pleasure only will occupy the day.

We wish to call attention to the fine land which lies between the Pembina and Athabasca Rivers. Whenever the Chalmers' trail is reopened you will see one of the greatest wheat belts in this section. Several prospectors have been through here especially since it was removed an oil usher had been found near the Padlock river.

S. C. Hard, Dominion Land Guide has two colonies under headway, one on Union Prairie where the last survey of the G.R.P. passes and near the Pembina river. There are a few fine level open homesteads to be had here yet. The other colony is what was formerly called Long Lake No. 2, in Tp. 38, R. 2.

There is talk of calling this Newton Lake after H. Newton who lives on the lake. This is where the Canadian Northern survey passes. This is a fine stock country with running water and hay land.

Mr. Duncan Gillis has built a new ferry here, also a new one at the Athabasca river.

W. B. Homes & Co. are starting a trading post at the Athabasca and are putting in a large stock of goods. A large amount of freight is expected to go through next winter to Slave Lake and Peace River. The new road will open up one of the best farming districts in Alberta with plenty of fine timber for building and lumber. This road will shorten the distance from Edmonton to Slave Lake about 550 miles.

AFTER A BONUS

FOR A NEW FLOUR MILL

Delegation Waited on the City Council Last Evening Asking Assistance.

Ex-Mayor Short was spokesman for the promoters of a new milling company for Edmonton, who approached the council last evening, asking for a bonus and exemption from taxation for ten years. A petition setting forth the purposes of the company was read, signed by Messrs. A. Brown, J. Kennedy, C. Nairn and W. Hamberstone.

Mr. Short said the company had already secured a site near the C. N. R. station grounds, where they proposed erecting a flour mill and elevators to handle all classes of grains produced in the district. The capital of the company was $100,000 and he understood that some $30,000 was subscribed at the organization meeting held a few days before. He assured the council that the enterprise was bona fide and the company's intention to establish an institution which in time would develop into an important element in the business life of the community. The city and district, he said, were on the threshold of great development, and it was desirable that the grain trade be centered here. There were great opportunities for Western Canadian trade in the Orient and in this the new enterprise hoped to share. It was the intention of the company, he said, to begin work at once, and so be able to handle a share of this season's crop. The company asked for a bonus the equivalent of that given the Dowling Milling Co. and would be willing to take this in the form of water rates, if satisfactory to the council.

Mr. A. Brown spoke along the same line. The site, he said, was located on Third street, north of the C. N. R. tracks. Four lots had been obtained there and the company intended erecting a mill with a capacity of two hundred and fifty barrels per day, and also elevators to handle wheat and other grain. An expert would be here in the course of a few days with plans and specifications, when work would be proceeded with at once.

Mr. Nairn said the subscribed stock was now over $30,000.

Ald. May said he believed home industries should be encouraged. The new enterprise would help keep the money at home.

Ald. Clark favored home industries but was opposed to bonusing anything but railways, which cannot be defied. If this were a good paying proposition, it needed no bonus.

As considerable discussion appeared probable, the whole matter was laid over for a week.

A TORONTO MAN TRIES

SOMETHING NEW AND IS DELIGHTED. FEELS LIKE A BOY.

Mr. M. N. Daise, Manager The Dustless Brush Co., 29 Colborne St., Toronto, is telling his friends how he found health after years of illness and pain. He says:

"I have been a great sufferer from Dyspepsia for many years. I have been treated by local doctors and have taken nearly all the advertised remedies with only temporary relief, if any at all, but since using Anti-Pill I can eat anything the same as when a boy. I have been taking one Anti-Pill at bedtime for the past three months, and find they regulate both stomach and bowels. My old time vigor has returned, so that my spirits are buoyant and temper normal. As a result of this unbroken experience I am in duty bound to give all credit to this wonderful remedy, Anti-Pill."

Every druggist sells Dr. Leonard's Anti-Pill, or a sample will be sent free by The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

The remedy that cured Mr. Daise so completely is surely worth a trial. 502

MANITOBA ELECTORS

DISFRANCHISED BY THE HUNDRED.

Provincial Government's Registration
Scheme Deprives Manitoba Electors of the Franchise

Winnipeg, June 2.—The scheme of the Roblin Government to prevent the eligible voters from registering with the object of retaining the present hooded lists over next election met with but partial success yesterday, for the people were warned and there was a steady stream of prospective voters passing all day through the registration offices, getting themselves eventually on the lists, some having to drive any distance up to fifty miles, while many of the booths were so congested that applicants had to be turned away by scores. This was particularly the case in Winnipeg North, where one Liberal agent estimates that five hundred votes remain unregistered, though the registration officer puts the number at only one hundred. Here there is a large foreign vote generally favorable to the Liberal party.

ELECTRICIANS GO OUT.

Winnipeg, June 2.—One hundred electrician workers struck yesterday for higher wages.

ACTION AGAINST THE C. P. R.

Winnipeg, June 2.—Action has been commenced in the King's Bench here by Mrs. Mary Savage, widow of Patrick Savage, C. P. R. conductor, against that company, in which she is claiming damages for the killing of her husband near Tamarac, Ont., on December 31, in a collision between a freight and a passenger train. Application was made to the Chief Justice yesterday to commit Dalton Coleman, superintendent's chief clerk to jail for contempt for refusing to answer a question put to him regarding the accident.

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN CRASHED.

Dayton, Ohio, June 2.—The Pennsylvania passenger train from St. Louis, struck an oil wagon at Stillwater Junction today. As the oil burst, the engine fires ignited the oil, and Engineer Edward Gilby and Fireman Charles Pryor were burned to death. The driver of the wagon escaped injury.

Walking Around the World.

Two young French medical students in the role of pedestrian globe trotters, arrived in the city last evening, in the course of their way to Vancouver and the Orient. These young men, although but youths, left their studies in Paris in November, 1903, in the endeavor to capture the prize of $15,000 offered by "Le Petit Parisien," a French newspaper, the stipulation being that certain cities should be visited and a report sent to the paper every week; that they should start penniless and pay no transportation in the course of their travels and making it necessary for them to be again in Paris on November 12, 1907. The young men state that they are now five months ahead of their arranged schedule, so have plenty of time. They have already visited France, Italy, Russia, Turkey, Asia, Minor, United States, and the most of Canada. They have had many adventures which it is interesting to hear them relate. While in Russia they were thrown in prison, where they had to stay for eight days. Just outside Moscow they were attacked by a pack of wolves, in which encounter Lampertine received a wound that he carries yet. In Argentina they were seized by bandits, and, in effecting their escape Geroline was shot twice. These and many other incidents have made the task of young adventurers have not seemed so difficult as they at first appeared. But both say that they are enjoying themselves and are certain of capturing the $15,000, besides gaining an experience that is an education in itself. They leave Edmonton Monday, their next stop being Vancouver, where they expect they will sail for Japan. Taking in Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa and then sailing for home, their trip will be finished. While in Western Canada they are sending reports home weekly, which are being published in one of the largest Parisian papers. They speak highly of this section of the Dominion and say that nowhere have they been more hospitably received.

Mr. Haultain Will Remain in Alberta

Calgary, June 2.—"I have no announcement to make at this meeting as some papers indicated. Before the meeting the chairman took me aside and reminded me as my mother did when I was young, that I should have to behave myself at this meeting. Unlike the earlier episodes, I think that I can say that I have behaved myself. I have no announcement to make, I think there is no announcement necessary. I have nothing more to say than this, that we all, you and I with all who live in this province shall do our best to make Alberta the best of the provinces of the Territories."

With these few words Premier Haultain concluded his address at the banquet of the board of trade last night. These words meant as plainly as words can, that Mr. Haultain had decided to remain in Alberta and not enter into politics in Saskatchewan. These words were at the conclusion of a very able and entertaining speech in which Mr. Haultain demanded that the party element be eliminated from the politics of the new province of Alberta.

We manufacture flour in standard grades from carefully selected wheat at our own mills.

The wheat grown in the North-West Territories and Manitoba is acknowledged to be the best in the world for milling purposes, and our mills are fitted with the most improved modern machinery and conducted on the best milling principles. It necessarily follows that the flour produced and sold by us is of the finest quality and second to none in the market. Try it; you will find the price reasonable, and the quality beyond question.

If you prefer local flour, we have it.
